Orthodox Christmas Feast

The festive season continues with a night of East European cuisine. A feeling of joy and expectation fills the air in every home as preparations are begun at first light. The table is covered with a richly embroidered cloth under which a handful of hay has been spread, (a reminder of Christ's birth in the manger), with a pastry kolach and lighted candle on the table. A sheaf of grain (the didukh) rests in a corner and a decorated Christmas tree (ialynka) takes center stage in the room.
